

press release

November 30, 2011 – for immediate release

Time + the human condition = artist; Eva Caridi's 'Nude' exhibition

Eva Caridi is an award winning artist that is proudly hosting, for the first time in the UK, her 'Nude' exhibition from January 12 – 22, 2012 at the 14,000 square foot, triple height subterranean space in central London; Ambika P3. 'Nude' consists of site-specific, multimedia, interactive iron labyrinths that unwind over a floor surface of around 14,000 square foot which visitors can experience by walking through the tortuous metallic corridors.

The exhibition is composed of two labyrinths; one is built in a Cretan fashion which has a video installation that merges past, present and future by showing the three stages of life through Caridi's family (herself, her mother and her young niece). The second is a deconstructed space where an army of life-sized, plaster sculptures of the female form are frozen in various moments in time trying to capture life as it slips from their hands.

Eva Caridi comments: "Nude is a fragile condition of human existence; I choose this title to try to embody the essence of my inspiration; being human, time and introspection. The labyrinth's force you into a pilgrimage, a journey through time ascending towards a personal state of mind. Innocence can be lost if you cannot get to the point where you can understand yourself and surrender to that state of mind. As people we complicate things and ignore the simple meaning of our existence. There are many messages you can get from this exhibition; I am merely the architect helping people reach whatever conclusion they want about themselves."

In the region of 11 tons of steel is being used to construct the labyrinths and will take nearly 1000 man hours to fabricate each piece. When this is complete, the segments will be transported to Ambika P3, taking five days to install. 'Nude' has been a long journey involving years of study and research. It is an intricately constructed, thought-provoking exhibition that engages users to look at themselves in the stark light of reality.

'Nude' runs from Thursday, January 12 – 22, 2012 at Ambika P3; a former construction hall / underground hangar for the University of Westminster's School of Engineering. It's a free entry exhibition open to the general public with an 'invite-only' preview evening taking place on Wednesday, January 11, 2012 from 6pm – 9pm.

...//ends

For more information, please contact:

Simone Bresi-Ando

Bresi-Ando consults

Tel: 07405 138 000 (London)

Email: press@bresi-ando.com

Twitter: @B_Aconsults

Notes to editor:

- The 'Nude' exhibition takes place from January 12 - 22, 2012 at Ambika P3, 35 Marylebone Road, London NW1 5LS
- All high res promotional photos are available for download, if you encounter any problems, contact: press@bresi-ando.com
- An exclusive, preview night for the 'Nude' exhibition will take place on January 11, 2012 from 6pm – 9pm
- Eva Caridi and the 'Nude' exhibition can be followed online at: nudeexhibition.blogspot.com, Twitter and Facebook
- Eva Caridi is an award winning artist who works between Greece and the UK. She has participated in and won awards from prestigious shows such as the Cairo, Florence and Alexandria Biennale.
- Ambika P3, built in the 1960s is a 14,000 square foot, triple height, subterranean space, converted from the vast former concrete construction hall for the University of Westminster's School of Engineering
- The labyrinths are made by S & W Limited, based in the West Midlands
- If laid out in a straight line; the walls of the labyrinths would stretch to approximately 100m
- This is the first time in England these labyrinth's have been shown and made specifically for this exhibition.

Eva Caridi was born in Corfu, Greece in a family where art impregnated the walls of their home as her father; Spiro Caridi was a painter. This environment informed the artistic talent Eva displays today in her ground breaking work. She is an award winning artist and has exhibited her work in vibrant cities such as Paris, New York and London.

Bresi-Ando consults is a new global boutique PR consultancy specialising in creating talking points about their brands, connecting brands and talent to their fans and taking experiential marketing activity to a level that not only sets you apart from your competitors but makes you a leader. Working in the luxury, arts, consumer tech, entertainment and music sectors; Bresi-Ando consults has quickly become a force within the PR landscape that prides itself on its results and changing the game. See www.bresi-ando.com for more.

Bresi-Ando

consults

All photos to be credited: ©Eva Caridi 2011

